MANNENBERG

The musical piece for the processional march is Mannenberg, composed by Abdullah Ibrahim.

Recorded with Basil 'Manenberg' Coetzee, Paul Michaels, Robbie Jansen, Morris Goldberg and Monty Weber, Mannenberg was released in June 1974.

The piece was composed against the backdrop of the District Six forced removals. It is named after the Cape Town township of Manenberg, which was established when the residents of District Six settled there. Mannenberg stands out as a uniquely South African piece: it blends together South African musical forms (marabi, mbaqanga and langarm) and American jazz. The song became a rallying cry against the injustices of apartheid and the particular destruction it wrought on communities. With its upbeat melodies and buoyant hook, the piece also serves a celebration of the resilience and endurance of humanity in the face of the brutalities of the apartheid regime.

Mannenberg is arguably South African jazz's most famous export, and still stands as an anthem of hope and of fortitude for oppressed communities. It also serves as a reminder of the inhumanity of what this country and this city endured, and of the legacies of that inhumanity.

DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY

In Business Administration:

Abdul Latif Alhassan

Thesis Title: Efficiency, competition and risk-taking behaviour in the short-term insurance market in South Africa

Abdul Latif Alhassan has a BSc and MPhil from the University of Ghana Business School. His research focuses on development finance and the industrial organisation of financial institutions in emerging economies.

In his thesis, Abdul Latif Alhassan seeks to enhance regulatory understanding of firm behaviour in the South African short-term insurance market. The work uses annual firm level data from 2007 to 2012 to examine the interrelationships between efficiency, competition and risk-taking behaviour among short-term insurance companies. The empirical analysis finds that firms in this market exercise high pricing power (less competition), with most firms operating below their optimal capacity. In addition, the results show that while increasing competition improves the ability of insurers to maximize their earning potential, in the short-term market it leads to excessive risk-taking behaviour by firms, increasing instability risk in the market. Policy recommendations for the management and regulation of the short-term insurance market are discussed.

Vera Ogeh Lassey Fiador

Thesis Title: Monetary policy and economic performance – evidence from selected African countries

Vera Fiador a holds BSc Administration (Hons) and an MPhil in Finance, both from the University of Ghana. Her PhD project was motivated by an earlier study she undertook on the growth effects of government policy for her MPhil.

Vera Fiador's thesis examines the effects of central bank monetary policy on macroeconomic prices, the behaviour of economic agents in the financial sector and their impact on economic performance. The key analysis used panel data covering the emerging economies in Sub-Saharan Africa (SSA). The findings of the study reveal that monetary policies do affect macroeconomic prices, the behaviour of economic agents and also the growth of countries in SSA. The study also reveals that the effectiveness of monetary policy is influenced by prevailing macro and micro factors and that these must be recognized in the cost-benefit analyses that precede monetary policy actions. The findings further imply the need to design monetary policies specifically for SSA countries as some of the effects of monetary policy do not conform to the established and more popular positions in the dialogue on growth and development.

Njeri Mwangiru

Thesis Title: Women's knowledge systems and their potential contribution to leadership and socio-political transformation

Njeri Mwangiru has a BA and BA(Hons) in Integrative Studies from Landegg International University (Switzerland), and an MA in International Relations from the University of the Witwatersrand. Her PhD thesis emerged from her involvement in student council activities at both universities. With her sister, she co-founded Scezons, a consultancy focused on peace-building and gender equality in Africa.

Njeri Mwangiru's thesis focuses on women's contributions to knowledge and leadership and their potential for expanded and alternative epistemologies, theoretical frameworks, and practical approaches to improved organisational performance and sustainable socio-political transformation. Motivated by positive patterns of recent economic growth, ongoing processes of democratisation, and Africa's youthful population, she interviewed women managers and leaders in Kenya and South Africa. The thesis establishes mechanisms and approaches which can support women in senior and leadership positions and addresses the under-representation of women at senior and leadership levels. The values of institutional and policy-support structures are discussed, as are mechanisms such as mentoring, capacity-building, networks, gender and diversity policies, and innovative technology platforms. The research underscores the need for continued efforts to address persistent inequity and gender bias, and to promote diversity to achieve improved leadership, organisational performance and sustainable socio-political transformation.

Nyambura Mwangiri

Thesis Title: An inquiry into the nature of effective dialogue and discourse for peace-building through leadership

Nyambura Mwangiri has a BA and BA(Hons) in Conflict Resolution from Landegg International University (Switzerland), and an MA in International Relations from the University of the Witwatersrand. Her PhD research emerged after auditing courses in mediation, negotiation and arbitration. With her sister, she co-founded Scezons, a consultancy focused on peace-building and gender equality in Africa.

Nyambura Mwangiri's thesis develops effective strategies for inter-paradigm dialogue and discourse for peace-building. It argues that the adoption and application of appropriate dialogue strategies enables a culture of leadership that can foster sustainable peace. This is important in contested cultural, political and economic spaces with multiple stakeholders and diverse perspectives. Findings illuminate the need both for self-mastery so that individuals can consciously anticipate, accommodate and develop their personal wisdom into peaceful systems of co-existence, and for well-configured partnerships in support of cultural responsiveness and social cohesion. Her research adopts 'dialogue' as the key component in the design of an effective model for peace-building. The results underscore emerging gaps that require addressing, highlighting areas of ambiguity, or dialectics between action and practice, and between researcher and practitioner.

ORIGIN OF THE BACHELOR DEGREE

The term 'Bachelor' derives from ancient ceremonies (the first such was believed to have been at Oxford in 1432) held to honour achievements of scholarship. The word derives from bacca lauri (laurel berry). Instead of the hoods we use today to signify your graduation, graduands of old wore garlands of laurel leaves and berries.

So the term has nothing to do with our modern understandings of what being a bachelor means, and everything to do with a long tradition of celebrating high achievement.

Welcome, Wamkelekile, Welkom – today is not the end of your relationship with the university but the beginning of a new phase in your continuing relationship with UCT, one that you share with the UCT community of over 100 000 alumni.

Diverse as this community is, the shared experiences of a critical academic ethos and a spectacular campus make for a strong network that has a wide footprint, not only in South Africa, but across the continent and the globe.

We set a great store by our links with our alumni, and indeed the links alumni have with each other. We promise that we will be in touch, and ask you in turn to let us know not only your current contact details but also, from time to time, something of your lives and where you are in your careers.

*Updates can be done on the web – <http://www.uct.ac.za/dad/alumni/update/>
- or by writing to the Alumni Office, UCT, PB X3 Rondebosch 7701 or by contacting us on (27) (21) 650 3746.*

Your alma mater looks forward to welcoming you back, whether to a public lecture, a leadership forum, your class reunion, or just an informal call!
